FARM WAGES RISING FASTER THAN IN CITY

Average Salaries Are the Highest in Far-western States.

PAY IN UTAH IS GOOD
Factory Wages Increasing
More Slowly; Land Values
Much Higher.

The money wages of farm labor increased about 2.5 per cent during past four years. Since 1902 the increase has been about 36 per cent. These estimates are based upon reports of correspondents of the bureau of statistics (agricultural forecasts) of the department of agriculture.

Wages of farm labor tended upward during the decade of the seventies; they were almost stationary during the eighties, and declined from 1892 to 1894, since which time they have steadily tended upward. Farm wages now, compared with wages during the eighties, are about 55 per cent higher; compared with the low year of 1894, wages are now about 67 per cent higher.

The current average rate of farm wages in the United States, when board is included, is, by the month, $21.38; by the day, other than harvest, $1.16; at harvest, $1.57. When board is not included, the rate is, by the month, $30.31; by the day, other than harvest, $1.50; by the day at harvest, $1.94.

Wages in different sections of the United States vary widely, averaging highest in the far western states and lowest in the south Atlantic states. For instance, the monthly rate, without board, is $56.50 in Nevada, $54 in Montana and $51 in Utah; but $17.90 in South Carolina, $19.60 in Mississippi, and $20.20 in Georgia. The highest state average, $56.50, is thus seen to be 3.2 times higher than the lowest rate, $17.90.

This wide difference in the wage rates in different sections of the United States is gradually lessening. In seven investigations made between 1866 and 1881, the average of wages of farm day labor (without board) in the far western states (where wages were highest) was about 100 per cent higher than in the south Atlantic states (where wages were lowest); whereas, in seven investigations made since 1898, the western states averaged about 10 per cent higher than the south Atlantic states. In the past year they were only about 90 per cent higher.

Factory Rise Slow.
The money wages of farm labor have increased relatively more than wages of labor in city manufacturing during the past twenty to thirty years. A comparison of the average of wages per employee in manufacturing industries, as reported by the censuses of 1910, 1900 and 1890, indicates that the wages of such employees increased 22 per cent in the years 1900 to 1910, and increased 23 per cent in the years 1890 to 1900; the increases in farm labor wages were approximately 37 per cent in the ten years and about 55 per cent in the twenty years. This relative gain of rural upon urban wages is due to the movement of labor from country to city.

Wages of farm labor have been increasing rapidly, not only in the United States, but in most, if not all, other countries of the world. In the central agricultural region of Russia the wage per day paid to male labor for the years 1901-1905 averaged 34 kopecks (17.5 cents) at sowing time, 50 kopecks (25.7 cents) at hay harvest, and 54 kopecks (27.7 cents) at wheat harvest. By 1910 these wages had increased to 55 kopecks (27.8 cents), 73 kopecks (37.5 cents) at sowing time, and 84 kopecks (42.5 cents) at wheat harvest. In Hungary the wages of agricultural laborers increased about 60 per cent in the ten years from 1897 to 1907. In Denmark, from 1892 to 1905, wages of farm labor, with board, increased about 30 per cent, and without board 22 per cent. In Sweden wages of agricultural laborers increased 38 per cent in the ten years from 1898 to 1908. For Norway we have data showing the wages in country and in towns, wherein it is shown that wages with board increased 19 per cent in country and 15 per cent in towns, during the ten years, 1895 to 1905, thus showing a greater gain in country than in town wages. In Japan, where economic conditions have been changing rapidly, the wages of farm labor have increased more than doubled in the fourteen years from 1894 to 1908, and increased 43 per cent from 1898 to 1908.

Values Nearly Doubled.
Although farm wages in the United States increased about 37 per cent from 1900 to 1910, land values nearly doubled in the same time; indicating that in the distribution of the proceeds from farming operations a larger proportion now goes to capital account and less to labor account than formerly. The interest rate of return on the capitalized value of land, however, is probably less now than twenty-five or thirty years ago. The value per acre of crop production increased about 50 per cent from 1900 to 1910.

The premium of harvest wages over ordinary day wages on the farm is gradually lessening. Thirty years ago wages at harvest averaged nearly 60 per cent higher than wages at other than harvest time; twenty years ago the premium was about 42 per cent; ten years ago about 35 per cent, and last year about 32 per cent. Perhaps this is due in part to improved labor-saving harvest machinery, and in part to an improved system of farming, by which the labor demand is more evenly distributed through the year.

The money wages when board is furnished is about 30 per cent less than when board is not included; that is, nearly one-third of what a man earns is charged to board. This ratio has not changed materially in the past thirty years.

EMPHATIC "DISCUSSION."

Official and Member of Goshen Ward "Argue" Religious Point Behind Church.

Special to The Tribune.

PROVO, March 23.—A well authenticated story, amusing for otherwise, depending on the point of view, comes from Goshen. William Finch, who is a counselor to the bishop of Goshen ward, advanced some theological doctrine in a sermon recently preached by him which was not approved by Otis Ercanbrack, a member of the ward. During the deliberation Mr. Ercanbrack emphasized his views by a physical demonstration on the anatomy of Mr. Finch.

Mr. Finch, who is also justice of the peace, intends to have Mr. Ercanbrack tried for assault and is investigating the question of whether or not the case can be tried before him as justice of the peace. Mr. Ercanbrack says he doesn't care if he is tried before Justice Finch if he can have a jury trial.
